North Core Station

DESIGNS BY EDRAW

This is a rendering of what the buildings might look like based on the Greenbelt station Alternative A site plan, one of three alternatives submitted. The view is from the Beltway with the state-owned environmentally sensitive lands along Indian Creek on the left. The mixed use commercial center is in the foreground with the twin towers office/hotel complex in the background.

Another Spectacular Show Planned for the 4th of July

by James Giese

The City will provide its usual spectacular Independence Day display of pyrotechnics over Greenbelt Lake at Albert "Buddy" Attick Park on Crescent Road. The show will begin shortly after 9 p.m. — as soon as it becomes dark enough. This year's booming array of shells, rockets, mortars and those squiggly things that zip all over the sky will be as great as ever, according to Gene Deist, the public works supervisor who will be in charge of the fireworks crew. The 8,500 pieces, including 2,396 shells ranging from two to six inches in size will provide a show lasting from 23 to 30 minutes, he estimates. Not only will there be a spectacular grand finale, but a rousing opening salvo and another spectacular display midway through the celebration that you may think is the grand finale — but it isn't. There will be more to come.

In all of his working life — more than 20 years — Gene Diest has never had the Fourth of July off. That has been the down side of his career with Public Works, a career that began with a summer job that turned permanent after he graduated from high school. But for all those years he has had the chance to do what many others dream of — setting off those big, spectacular fireworks that delight thousands of Greenbelters and their friends every Independence Day. This year he will be the man in charge, with 14 crew members to help him set off the display, replacing the shells as they are fired and keeping the area secure and fire-safe. The crew will also set up up barricades, placing temporary no parking signs and assisting with setting up equipment at the band-stand.

plan of subdivision to meet the adequate public facilities test required by the county, according to Celia Craze, director of planning and community development for the city.

The proposed north-south road will bridge over the old Branchville Road in order to intersect with Greenbelt Road, which is elevated at the proposed point of intersection because it crosses over the CSX railroad tracks. Construction of both this road and the additional ramps for the Beltway interchange will impact on floodplain and wetlands.

North Core

The north core will be subdivided into three parcels that could be sold off separately to builders; they could also be developed in their entirety by one developer. One concept plan shows how the property might look if there were separate builders, another if it were conceived as an integrated development by a single builder. All plans call for a mixture of retail stores, offices, hotels, and apartment resi-

Three Designs Are Presented For Development Near Metro

by James Giese

Three concept plans for Greenbelt Station have now been submitted to the Prince George's Planning Board for consideration and approval, along with a preliminary plan of subdivision. None will necessarily be the final plan of development for this major 132-acre undertaking proposed for the land between the Capital Beltway and Greenbelt Road and between Cherrywood Lane and the CSX railroad tracks. Just west of Greenbelt, the land borders College Park on the east and Berwyn Heights on the north. The developers of the property, Metroland Developers, LLC, have declared the three concept plans to be "not binding" on the applicant, a future purchaser, except as the applicant may so represent in the processing and review of the Greenbelt Station project.

The Greenbelt City Council will hold a special meeting on Monday, July 2 at 8 p.m. in the council room of the Municipal Building to review these plans. Although the three plans differ, they are similar in many respects. All divide the property into two sections. The northern, referred to as the north core, consists of 78 acres located primarily on Greenbelt Metro Station property where the parking lots now exist. This land lies within the Greenbelt city limits.

The southern section, referred to as the south core, is the former A. H. Smith property. It lies in an unincorporated area, not a part of any municipality. It consists of 54 acres.

In all three proposals, the two cores would be connected by a new planned road running northward from a new intersection with Greenbelt Road and ending at the Beltway. There it would connect with the present Metro Drive and, according to the proposed preliminary plan of subdivision, a full interchange with the Beltway.

Such an interchange has not yet been approved by the State Highway Administration, which is currently studying its feasibility and design concepts. State approval and incorporation into its Capital Improvement Program for funding or developer funding will be required for the preliminary

July 12 Hearing Scheduled on Greenbelt Station Plans

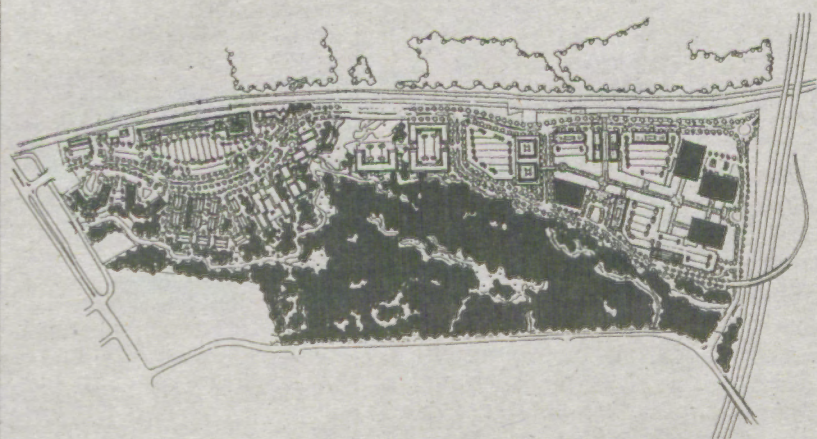

by Elaine Skolnik

In their race to "beat the clock," Metroland developers have nailed down a hearing date on Greenbelt Station's concept plan and preliminary plan of subdivision before the Prince George's County Planning Board's August recess. After several earlier postponement requests by Metroland, a hearing on Greenbelt Station will be held, barring further postponements, on Thursday, July 12, in the County Administration Building in Upper Marlboro.

Metroland's apparent objective from the start has been to reach the finish line before

Conceptual site plan submitted for Greenbelt station. The CSX railroad tracks run across the top, Cherrywood Lane across the bottom, the Capital Beltway is on the right side to the north and Greenbelt Road is on the left side. The northern section would consist of retail, commercial, residences, offices, and a hotel. The southern section would consist of stores in a strip mall and residences. The final plan may or may not look like this or any of the other alternatives submitted at this time.

Guidelines Given For Enjoying 4th

The Greenbelt Police Department provides the following guidelines for a happy, safe Fourth of July to those planning to celebrate at Albert "Buddy" Attick Park (Greenbelt Lake).

1. The parking lot at the park is reserved primarily for handicapped and elderly persons. Vehicles must have handicapped or elderly individuals on board in order to use the lot. Handicapped tags and/or placards will not necessarily be required. Temporary no parking signs will be posted on the streets surrounding the park. Do not park in these areas or your vehicle will be towed.

2. If you plan to park in the median of Kenilworth Avenue to watch the fireworks, make sure that your car is completely off the roadway. If your vehicle is protruding onto the roadway or shoulder, you will be required to move it. The roadway must remain clear for the passage of emergency vehicles.

3. A tent occupied by police employees will be located in the grassy area along the main parking lot in order to provide first aid and to help with lost and missing children.

4. Alcoholic beverages are strictly prohibited and violators will be subject to arrest.

5. Fireworks, including sparklers, are deadly, dangerous and illegal for private individuals to possess. Penalties include a fine of up to $1,000 and/or six months in jail.

6. Fireworks will begin at dusk (shortly after 9 p.m.) and last 25 to 30 minutes. At their conclusion, traffic will be redirected outbound on Crescent Road toward

Stand Up, Be Counted

It is time for Greenbelters to speak out. The county council is considering legislation, proposed by county Councilmember Thomas Hendershot that would subvert the planning process and allow the Metroland LLC developers to proceed with plans — which Metroland is constantly changing — that they deem most beneficial to themselves for the area around the Greenbelt Metro station.

An amendment proposed by Hendershot makes a mockery of citizen participation and the entire planning process by exempting whatever the developers propose for the Metro site from the Development District Standards so painstakingly hammered out over a period of years by hard-working Greenbelt, College Park and Berwyn Heights citizens to guide the planning process. Your friends and neighbors, together with county professional staff, did this work in good faith.

Never mind that the development designed to be transit-oriented in the Metroland concept is now car-oriented, with an expanded Beltway interchange proposed and greatly increased local traffic predicted. Never mind that only a sketchy analysis has been made of the probable effect of the new development on existing businesses. Never mind the harm to the priceless wetlands. Picture attractive, leafy Springhill Lake jammed with residents who cannot get out onto gridlocked Cherrywood Lane. Picture all parts of the city affected as drivers seek shortcuts away from the traffic on state roads. Picture Greenbelt Road further clogged with cars and dirty air.

Make your views known, for much is at stake. Attend the special Greenbelt City Council meeting on Monday, July 2, at 8 p.m.. Equally important — attend the Prince George's Planning Board meeting to make sure that they hear Greenbelt's demand that planning, not political deals, should govern this site. Speak out for the future of the city we all love.

Accept Lake For What It Is

This letter is in response to "Lake Needs Buffer" in News Review two weeks ago.

We agree that Greenbelt Lake is a beautiful place to walk and see nature in action. Just last week our neighbor took my son and his daughter out in the canoe. They saw tadpoles, frogs, baby turtles, goose eggs, a mother duck and her ducklings, and the beaver. Greenbelt is a wonderful place for children. I never had this growing up in McLean, Virginia.

Greenbelt Lake is nice as a park, but it is not the Alaskan wilderness. Rather, it is a man-made urban lake and suffers from all of the problems one would expect in a high-use park facility.

Many of my neighbors and their families have lived in their homes on Greenbelt Lake for over 35 years. They have spent thousands of hours and dollars improving their homes and yards. We walk the same path as this writer who complained, and we don't see these improvements as distractions. In fact, we are thankful that the families with property abutting the lake have taken care of their property and have not destroyed the esthetics of the lake with chain-link fences, storage sheds, motor vehicle parking, or privacy fences.

Finally, we do not understand how the City of Greenbelt could reasonably implement the "Buffer Zone" suggestion. How much of a buffer would be required, and how, with the current budget constraints, would the city be able to afford to purchase the necessary easements? Further, how would the city afford to maintain the buffer zone when currently we cannot afford to remove the dead trees threatening those walking the path, remove the silt that is clogging the lake coves, remove trash thrown into the lake by visitors, or control the algae?

We suggest that Ms. Newcomb merely enjoy the lake for what it is, an urban lake. Secondly, we suggest city funds available for lake maintenance be focused on the more critical needs of safety and cleanliness of the lake park rather than the purchase of easements.

Politics: Good or Bad

There is good politics and there is bad politics.

Unfortunately, I think Greenbelt is experiencing the latter in the matter of the Astronomy Club application.

Frankly, I'm sick of the "Putens bashing" that has appeared in letters to this paper over the last few weeks.

Aren't there more important matters to worry about?

I voted for Ed to look after Greenbelt's best interest and to spend my tax dollars wisely. So far I feel he's done just that, and I'm proud of the stands he has had to take over the years. He has shown complete dedication to the tasks at hand.

There appears to be more to this than meets the eye.

Why is this issue being blown out of proportion?

Could it be certain individuals are looking ahead to the next election, and plan to bring this up again? Very possible. I call this "dirty politics" and hope by then this is forgotten and buried, and we address major issues affecting all of us.

Despite what some might say...I can't help but wonder if Ed was from another area other than Greenbelt East, if this would have been newsworthy at all. There appears to be an "under current" splitting this city between the old and new. Let's face it, folks, the East is here to stay, like it or not.

Recycling Kudos

For those citizens who are interested in another aspect of recycling, I would like to call their attention to the Preserve toothbrushes which are stocked by the Co-op Pharmacy. The toothbrushes are made of 100 percent recycled plastic, over half of which comes from discarded yogurt cups from Stonyfield. Subscribers to the program receive a new Preserve brush every three months by mail, along with an envelope to send their old brush back to Recycline. The company closes the waste loop by grinding up the returned brushes and turning them into plastic lumber for park benches and porch decks. When I last was in the Co-op, I found the small supply of Recycline brushes near the toothbrushes but on a shelf in a corner behind a display case which made them hard to find.

The American Dental Association recommends replacing your toothbrush at least four times a year, but a replacement rate of two times a year accounts for an estimated 50 million pounds of waste annually in the United States. Interested? Contact Recycline, Inc., at their website www.recycline.com, 1-888-354-7296.

Support Observatory

The Greenbelt Observatory project is making progress. It was just one year ago this month that the club received IRS recognition as a tax-exempt organization. Already we have a structure. Research has been done on permit and zoning issues by the city staff, and meetings have been held with an architect and civil engineer. We have accomplished a lot. More remains to be done and we need the public's help to take advantage of this once in a lifetime opportunity.

Many people still believe that our city council itself is going to provide direct funds for the construction of the observatory. This is not the case. The Greenbelt Astronomy Club, Inc. is solely responsible for all the costs of the observatory project. We do not expect to receive any city funds. We are very grateful that our city has provided, and will continue to provide, excellent professional assistance from the staff, but direct city financial support is out of the question.

The majority of our club members are Greenbelt residents, many of them are long-time city residents and long-time club members. These members set the goal of building an observatory for the city of Greenbelt. We need your help.

We have a great opportunity now. The observatory can be a wonderful asset for the community of Greenbelt. The extent to which we can successfully employ this opportunity depends on the degree to which you will support it. Your direct, personal involvement is needed now. Call me; write to me (the number and address follow); let me know how I can help you achieve this community goal: grnbtaastro@learn.com or by phone at the club information line at 301-277-4041, Mail to: Box 727, Greenbelt, MD 20768.

Clear skies!

Park and Ticket

I received a ticket on Sunday, June 17, at Buddy Attick Park. I am always happy to comply with traffic and parking regulations, but feel I violated regulations on Sunday in ignorance.

At 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, the lot on Crescent Road beside the lake was teeming with cars going in and out and clamoring for spaces — including the section that I now realize is designated for permit holders only. I found the only space available in that section. All I wanted to do was take a peaceful walk around the lake and then go home again. I didn't notice a single sign or warning. When I came back to my car, I had a yellow slip of paper under my wiper that will cost me at least $25. I looked about to see if there was a "No Parking" sign. At that point I did see several small signs with small print posted in other spaces — not in mine. I noticed at least 10 cars with tickets — there may well have been many more. I'm sure none of us deliberately violated parking regulations. As I pulled out, a van with a Hispanic family was already waiting for my spot and asked if I was leaving. I tried to explain that parking here isn't allowed but they didn't understand.

I'm a single parent and really can't afford to pay this ticket. I hope residents will rally to ensure that lake parking restrictions be made obvious.

50th Baseball Season

Greenbelt's Little League entered its 50th anniversary this year. This week the playoffs begin. I happen to think it was one of the best seasons yet. Greenbelters go to McDonald field, our extended family room, to celebrate as our children play baseball. This season I saw what I always treasure, kids able to connect a bat and a ball, kids wearing spiffy uniforms and, best of all, kids sliding in the dirt. It's the playoffs, so some teams will win, and some teams will lose, but every kid who got up to bat heard parents, friends, and neighbors cheering them on. I hope some players will savor those moments no matter which team wins.

Name Your Choice to Be 2001 Outstanding Citizen

By Barbara Havekost

Although we're just getting ready to celebrate Independence Day, Labor Day is just around the corner and the annual Labor Day Festival fast approaches. It is again time for one of Greenbelt's hardworking, dedicated volunteers to be named the city's Outstanding Citizen. Nominations are traditionally received for men and women who have labored tirelessly to make Greenbelt the special community it has been since its beginnings in 1937.
Nominees must be volunteers; city employees and elected officials may not be considered. The nomination deadline is August 6, with the successful nominee announced on Friday, August 31 at the opening ceremony of the Festival. The new Outstanding Citizen will be the Grand Marshal of the Labor Day Parade on Monday, September 3 and his or her name will be added to those of the 29 previous recipients to a plaque that hangs in the Greenbelt Community Center.
If you know a person who stands out, someone who gives generously of his or her time, shows concern for others, someone who demonstrates leadership, enthusiasm and cooperation, now is the time to send your nomination for the Outstanding Citizen to: Robert Zugby, Outstanding Citizen Committee, 94 Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770. Your written nomination should include the various organizations and activities in which your nominee has served along with any information you believe makes him or her particularly deserving of this award.

If you've nominated someone before without success, don't be discouraged, try again. The committee receives many wonderful nominations each year but only one can be the final selection. With so many good people working for the benefit of our city, recipients who have received this award often have been nominated more than one time. The committee urges nominators not to give up if their candidate has been passed over before. Your favorite could be this year's winner.
Besides selecting each year's recipient, the Outstanding Citizen Committee also plans the award ceremony, arranges publicity for the award and seeks contributions and gifts for the recipient. In recent years the Rotary Club has helped cover the cost of the program and the plaque given to the honoree. The committee welcomes the donation of other significant gifts for presentation to this year's winner. Persons interested in making such a donation should contact Zugby at 301-345-2065 (e-mail: rzugby@aol.com).
If you know someone who you believe should be this year's Outstanding Citizen, now is the time to send in your nomination. A nomination form is located elsewhere in this paper, but a simple letter will do as well.

Outstanding Citizen Michael Burchick Dies

Michael Burchick died just before midnight, Sunday, June 24, 2001.

He was born in Slovan, Pennsylvania on October 24, 1917. His parents, John (Burcik) Burchick and Dorothy Yalch Burchick came from the lands of current Slovakia in 1902. He was baptized and confirmed in St. Mary's Ruthanian Byzantine Catholic Church on November 4, 1917. He was one of 11 children: seven girls and four boys.

In May of 1941, Mr. Burchick received a telegram from the War Department to report for duty in the Quartermaster Corp in Washington, D.C. He was transferred to the Corps of Engineers where he met Myrna Freeman from St. Paul, Minnesota. They were married New Year's Day, January 1, 1942, one month after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941. During the early war years he was a Requirements Analyst for the Corps of Engineers. He worked on the storage and distribution of fuel for the European and China theaters of operation. With war veterans returning home, he transferred to the Veteran's Administration (VA), Supply Operations in the Department of Medicine and Surgery. Subsequently until he retired in 1979, Mr. Burchick was an executive for the Department of Medicine and Surgery.

The Burchicks came to Greenbelt in 1942. Mr. Burchick immediately became active in community events. He was an organizing member of St. Hugh's parish.

Mr. Burchick had served in various capacities in the parish including chief of ushers, lector and Eucharistic minister. He had been a member of the Knights of Columbus, Prince George's Council 2809. He had been the Past Faithful Navigator in the Archbishop Michael J. Curly Assembly, 4th Degree and he had been honored with solemn knighthood under the protection of the Pope when he was invested in the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem. He was a founding sponsor for the Child Sponsorship Program for Christian Education Support in the Holy Land, and extended his protection to suffering children there.

In 1992 Mr. Burchick received the "Outstanding Citizen of the City of Greenbelt Award." At that time Outstanding Citizen Committee chair Thomas Renahan described Mr. Burchick as "one of the best known people in Greenbelt, and one of the best liked. He has been aptly described as a consummate volunteer ... a modest and value-centered man. His concern for others is evident in a long history of volunteer contributions to charities. He has helped poor and needy families; raised funds; worked with cancer patients; and helped other senior citizens."

He was among the group who helped form the cooperative of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI). Later Mr. Burchick was also active in the Woodland Hills Community Association cooperative development of the Woodland Hills subdivision.

When the board of the community's original cooperative, Greenbelt Consumer Services, decided to sell the grocery store and gas station, Mr. Burchick was among a group of leaders who organized Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative (GCC). GCC bought the facilities and continues to provide retail services within the city. Mr. Burchick served on the board of directors for several years.

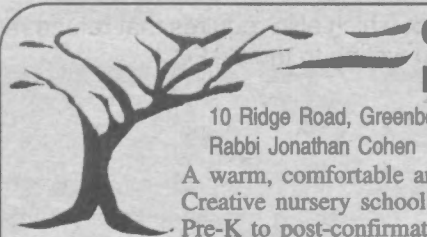

He served on the Labor Day Festival Committee, where he organized the bingo for United Cerebral Palsy. He also served on Greenbelt's 50th anniversary committee, and has worked with the Boy Scouts, the Lion's Club and the Credit Union. Also he took a leading role in trying to revitalize Roosevelt Center.

Mrs. Burchick preceded him in death in July 2000. He is survived by children Michael J. (Donna), Duane (Lorie), James (Anna), Mark (Michelle), Terence and Diane (Denis) Davis, 15 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Friends may visit the Borgwardt Funeral Home, Powder Mill Road, Beltsville on Thursday, June 26, 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. A mass of Christian burial will be celebrated on Friday, June 27 at 10:15 a.m. at St. Hugh's Catholic Church. Burial will be in the Greenbelt Cemetery.

A memorial fund has been made in Mr. Burchick's name for the benefit of the children in the Holy Land. Contributions can be sent to the Holy Land Christian Ecumenical Foundation at P.O. Box 6687, Silver Spring, Maryland 20906.

Bench Will Go; City Okays Budget Items, Exception

by Sandy Smith

Council, at its June 11 meeting, agreed to a citizens' request to remove a bench that has become an attractive nuisance, tended to some end-of-the-year budget items and heard requests for council action from a nearby business and a resident.

Attractive Nuisance

Citizens in the 21-23 Court of Ridge Road successfully petitioned council to remove a bench at the end of the courts. They complained that the bench has been attracting those involved in illegal activities (outdoor alcohol and drug use) and that they littered the area with bottles and drug paraphernalia. Unwilling to remove the bench without trying to solve the problem and after hearing that the police had not responded to the complaint, Councilmember AlanTurnbull asked Chief James Craze what the police department could do. Craze replied that this particular problem had not been brought to his attention but that it was difficult to clear out troublemakers in each potential trouble spot.

He promised to check and report back on this situation, indicating that similar complaints had been made about other areas, such as the benches near the underpass at Roosevelt Center, which also attract those who are drinking, using drugs, using foul language and otherwise being a public nuisance. When video cameras were placed in the Center, he said, this drove them to other areas.

Turnbull wanted the police department to have time to work out a solution and if one was not forthcoming then to remove the bench. But other councilmembers thought that this particular bench, near many homes, should be removed now. They felt this situation differed from the problems in more public places.

Upon receipt of this petition, the city staff had already checked and obtained approval from Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (on whose property the bench is located) and nearby Green Ridge House. With support from Councilmembers Rodney Roberts, Thomas White and Edward Putens, staff's recommendation to remove the bench was approved.

Budget Issues

Council approved the transfer of funds to departments that experienced unexpected expenditures during the year, including the temporary disability reserve fund and the unemployment compensation fund. In response to council questions, City Manager Michael McLaughlin replied that both funds had experienced unusual expenditures and he didn't think that this would need to be addressed in future budgets. Asked by Councilmember Thomas White why one specific shortfall was not brought to council's attention earlier, McLaughlin replied that he usually waits until near the end of the fiscal year to cover all unexpected expenses at once and not have to come back before council with further adjustments.

Council also established a Special Projects Fund to account for funds that have been set aside for specific purposes or that require separate administration by a Federal or other agency. They also selected the firm of Reznick, Fedder & Silverman to review the city's financial records; and agreed to raise garbage collection fees by $1.50 per quarter.

Other actions

Council approved the city's proposal for the FY 2002 Annual Program for Program Open Space. The city is requesting funds for four projects to acquire underdeveloped land in various areas of the city to preserve green space and a development project to further improve the city's playgrounds. Staff will present this request at the June 15 meeting of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The city has received a Special Exception Amendment for the Doctors Hospital Health Campus, adjacent to but outside the city limits of Greenbelt. Doctors Hospital wants to add a 97,000 square foot medical office building and a four-level parking deck to its facilities. These changes will not disturb existing woodland adjacent to city property. Council recommended approval of the expansion as long as issues related to storm water management, tree conservation and one affected intersection are addressed. The city also asked that a master plan for the campus be developed to prevent the piecemeal approach which has occurred in the past.

Buffer

Council heard a request from Greenbelter Jean Newcomb, who felt that a buffer zone was needed between yards and the path around Greenbelt Lake to preserve the beauty of the lake area. She complained of removal of natural barriers, trees cut down and what she described as "goofy looking" structures in some yards which mar the natural beauty of the lakeside.

Another resident, Marc Siegel, whose yard abuts the lake path and contains mechanical deer, supported the principle of "your backyard is your backyard." He thought that with little public space available, it was too late for a buffer zone. He spoke of other problems in the lake, such as growth of algae, a green slime which made boating virtually impossible. Council referred Newcomb's request to the Park and Recreation Advisory Board and the Advisory Planning Board.

Grant

Earlier in the evening the city received a grant of $1,500, presented by Jon Burrell of the Local Government Insurance Trust, for the city's educational programs during Safety Week, June 4-8. Greenbelt's programs were described as very innovative.

Council also joined with other small cities to proclaim June 22 as "Investing in Communities Day." The Small Cities Council of the National League of Cities works to draw attention to issues affecting smaller cities like Greenbelt. Councilmember Putens hoped to encourage every small city to participate.

Greenbelters were saddened to hear of the death of longtime Greenbelter Michael Burchick. Our sympathy to his family.

Congratulations to the following graduates:

Benjamin Skolnik, son of Lola and Steve Skolnik of Ridge Road, who graduated cum laude from Wheaton College, Norton, Mass.

Matt Gregory, son of Kathy and Mark Gregory of Bird Lane, from ERHS. Matt was this year's valedictorian as well as a National Merit Scholar. Matt will attend the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania.

Army Pfc. Damon J. Wells, son of Toni D. Wells of Lakecrest Drive, has graduated from the light-wheel vehicle mechanic advanced individual training (AIT) course at Fort Jackson, Columbia, So. Car.

Congratulations to Andy Carruthers, whose story on Yoga and children was published in the Health Section of the June 26 Washington Post. This was the first full-page feature story he has had published in the Post.

Leonard Mikesell of 49 Court Ridge is at home learning to use the new knee replaced at Holy Cross Hospital recently.

Congratulations to Colby and Michael Storck on the birth of their new daughter, Isabel Maria Pilar, born at their home at 69 Court Ridge on June 4. Proud grandparents are Inez and Thomas Storck of Ridge Road. Isabel was baptized June 17 at St. Hugh's Church.

We wish a speedy recovery to refuse crew member Jeff Gray, who has been ill with pneumonia.

Frances Glendening: ACE Reading Reception Guest

by Mary Moien

Frances Glendening, Maryland's First Lady, was the guest of honor at the Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) Reading Reception on June 12. The reception, sponsored by ACE recognized the many Greenbelt students who have read books and prepared reports for the Reading Program this year. Glendening participated by reading a book to the students present.

The walls of the Community Center reception room were covered by book reports produced by almost 500 students. The younger students wrote brief reviews of their reports, while the older elementary students drew artwork to accompany their written reports. In addition, there were several locations where videos filmed at the city's elementary schools were shown of children reading their reports.

Mayor Pro Tem Alan Turnbull and City Councilmember Thomas X. White represented the city at the reception. ACE chair, Leta Mach, other committee members and Carol Mealey, who had organized both this reception and one held earlier in the year, could see the success of their efforts since the program's inception. ACE Committee member, Joseph Otterman, who had originally proposed the idea of encouraging children to read and write reports, had a chance to discuss the program with the First Lady.

Frances Glendening

During the reception, Glendening spoke with the Greenbelt News Review about her ongoing interests in family literacy. Her focus is to encourage "15 for the future," that is, 15 minutes a day spent reading to prepare families for the future. Glendening indicated how, when children are younger, parents should be encouraged to spend just 15 minutes a day reading to them. As the children grow older, they should spend 15 minutes a day reading to the parents. Some parents feel overwhelmed by the thought of reading books to their children, so setting a brief, but regular, time to read helps them relax and enjoy the process.

To encourage families, Glendening has designed a calendar and stickers that children can use to keep track of their reading day by day. These calendars are found in most libraries, but can also be obtained by calling her office at 410-974-8450. Glendening commented that she got the idea for the calendar from a calendar that she had made for her son, when he was young, to chart his progress in reading. In another area of the arts, Glendening has collaborated with Nancy Grasmick, state superintendent of schools, on an anthology of children and the arts.

The Recycling Bin

Dear Lorax, I'm very upset with the recycling collectors right now. After collecting my bags of newspapers and emptying out my yellow bin of cans and bottles, they left a large pile of boxes I had put out for recycling. The refuse collectors came by a short time later and threw them in the refuse trucks. Why should I put the effort into recycling when it ends up in the refuse truck? Cora Gated in East Greenbelt

Dear Cora, The recycling collectors can only take cardboard boxes which have been broken down/flattened. (The recycling truck does not compress cardboard and packs out too quickly if open boxes are put in) The boxes that cannot be taken by the recycling crews are taken with regular trash collection. Unfortunately, at least half of city residents who place boxes out for recycling do not flatten them.

Large boxes (appliance type) can either be taken to the City Recycling Center or broken down under 4 feet for collection by the recycling crew. Also, if you have a lot of cardboard, it should be tied together to make the collection easier.

I applaud your efforts for recycling papers and commingled materials, and hope you will flatten your cardboard so it can also be recycled. The Lorax

Greenbelt Artist Leads Landscape "Paint Out"

Paint the town red — or other colors of choice! Join Greenbelt artist Dan Kennedy and learn basic techniques of landscape painting using an artist's viewfinder. Kennedy's workshop will take place just outside of the Greenbelt Community Center on July 1, from 1 to 4 p.m., in connection with the Artful Afternoon program hosted by the Greenbelt Department of Recreation. Artful Afternoons are held on the first Sunday of each month from noon until 5 p.m. and feature a variety of arts activities and programs for all ages.

Workshop participants will learn how to paint what they see more accurately. Kennedy explained that a viewfinder helps painters to transfer what they see in the distance to the much smaller surface of the canvas. He said the viewfinder facilitates "downsizing (the landscape) to scale." The workshop is open to individuals ages 16 and up, at all experience levels. Advance registration is encouraged; participants should complete a course registration form at the main office of the Greenbelt Community Center, 15 Crescent Road, 301-397-2208. The workshop is free for Greenbelt residents, and a small fee is charged for non-residents. Workshop participants are asked to bring acrylic gesso, paint brushes, a small can or jar, and oil or acrylic paints in a full range of colors. A painting surface will be provided.

Kennedy brings a wealth of experience to the class. He has been a landscape painter for 40 years, and has taught many students individually and in classroom settings. Many Greenbelt residents are familiar with Kennedy's work, which is on permanent display at the Greenbelt Municipal Building and the Greenbelt Community Center. Kennedy also created a popular mural for Greenbelt Homes, Incorporated, showing historic Greenbelt homes through the changing seasons. The artist created a large-scale mural on Route 1, and is currently working on a mural for the Largo Kettering Post Office on commission by the Prince George's Arts Council.

Kennedy is an Artist in Residence at the Greenbelt Community Center, where visitors have enjoyed seeing his latest creations unfold.

Kennedy is a self-taught artist who learned, in part, by emulating master landscape painter Eric Sloan. Kennedy read a good deal about Sloan's work and was among a group of aspiring artists who would come to observe Sloan work in order to learn to paint. Kennedy described Sloan as a difficult man and he learned not to talk to Sloan while he was working. Kennedy laughingly remarked that Sloan was married eight times "which tells you what a nice guy he is". Kennedy then went on to develop his own style.

Additional activities scheduled for the July 1 Artful Afternoon include a jazz concert with Chuck Redd, an open house with the Community Center Artists in Residence, and a free paper lanternmaking workshop with Molly Ross (registration required). For more information, call Nicole DeWald or Ellen Baer at 301-397-2208.

Goddard Plan Is Delayed, Mayor Criticizes Process

by Virginia Beauchamp

In a recent letter, administrators of the Goddard Space Flight Center have provided notice that completion of the formal proposal for the Facilities Master Plan originally expected in early May has been postponed to the end of June. It will become available for community review on July 2. "Delays involving the environmental review," the letter says, have set back the completion date.

The proposal with its full documentation must be submitted first to the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC).

Following its submission to NCPC, the documents will become available to the community at large for on-site review through local public libraries and in the library and visitor center at Goddard. Those then wishing to comment on the proposal may do so in writing within a 90-day period.

Public is "Told"

Although the agency in this way appears to invite public comment, as it previously held public meetings to explain its plans, the city of Greenbelt challenges the agency's characterization of these meetings. In the words of Mayor Judith Davis, "The planning process to date has been one where the public is being told what is going to happen, not one which has solicited public input for purposes of influencing the outcome."

This description occurs in an April letter to Congressman Steny

Hoyer about the city's concerns. In particular the letter criticizes the mode in which the agency has shared with nearby residents its plans to close off Soil Conservation Road through the Goddard campus and to realign that public artery with the western boundary of the property. According to Mayor Davis, these previous meetings have been the agency's forum "to defend the preferred alternative," not to reconsider or revise that alternative.

Her letter, which was distributed as well to both Maryland senators and to Congressman Albert Wynn, also introduces a new issue: In a meeting with commercial property owners and site managers, the Greenbelt City Council had heard that the nearby real estate market is being negatively impacted by changes at Goddard. Current corporate tenants contracting with NASA, these business people claim, report they have been told they "must" move onto Goddard's campus," the mayor's letter says, since unification of the campus will provide space for these contractors.

"The City understands the desire to have contractors nearby in order to enhance efficiency and synergy," her letter states. Nevertheless, because of the policy's negative impact on its commercial neighbors, the city has "serious concerns with the tone and impact of the Master Plan process."

"The planning process to date has been one where the public is being told what is going to happen . . ."

Mayor Judith Davis

their competitor, the Sector Plan/Sectional Map Amendment (SMA) is adopted. his planning and zoning document took more than two years to prepare in worksessions with Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (MNCPPC) team leaders, and a sector planning group of representatives, including municipal officials, from Berwyn Heights, College Park and Greenbelt. The group has recommended the Sector Plan/SMA as the most effective planning tool for carrying out the umbrella vision for development of the Greenbelt Metro Area.

In supporting the Sector Plan/SMA tool, the Greenbelt City Council saw it as the best way to achieve comprehensive development of the Greenbelt Metro/A.H. Smith tracts and to protect "the sensitive environmental features and redevelopment/integration of the surrounding inner-Beltway communities." The sector plan covers approximately 1,600 acres immediately surrounding the Greenbelt Metrorail and MARC rail station.

Metroland Plan

Metroland's Greenbelt Station made its debut in October 1998. Planned originally as a 240-acre regional upscale urban mall complex, its centerpiece was a 1.4 to 1.8 million square foot complex featuring several department stores, restaurants, cinemas, hotel and other amenities. Office and residential buildings were also envisioned. The mall concept has since been revised to what is called a main street design and the complex now covers about 132 acres.

With the Prince George's County Council scheduled to review the Sector Plan/SMA on September 18, with possible final action on the plan in October, Metroland's fast-tracking of its "Greenbelt Station" project aided earlier by the County Council's passage of CB-35 in May 1998, has not given the private developer a commanding lead over the sector plan in the "beat the clock" race.

CB-35 established a new land use category, Metro Planned Community, in the 1-2 heavy industrial zone, that would permit construction of a mixed-use development at and adjacent to a metro station. Later the developers requested revision of CB-35 when they changed the mall concept to a main street design. The county council endorsed this change when it subsequently passed CB-47.

Environmental Concerns

Even with the support of many county and state officials, Metroland developers, in their effort to fast-track Greenbelt Station, have encountered major setbacks. Slowing them down considerably was a prolonged battle over the environmentally sensitive land on the A.H. Smith tract - wetlands, floodplain, habitat - and the failed wetland mitigation site mandated when the Metro station was constructed.

Determining the size of the environmental envelope triggered a myriad of meetings with representatives of the nearby municipalities, M-NCPPC, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, county and state agencies and the community group, Citizens to Conserve and Restore Indian Creek (CCRIC). This issue was finally resolved when the state agreed to purchase about 78 acres on the Smith Tract, the owner donating additional acreage to comprise a 111-acre environmental envelope.

Roads

Another major issue requiring the attention of all parties is centered on the roadway system to serve the proposed Greenbelt Station development and its effect on Greenbelt's local roads. Both the Greenbelt City Council and CCRIC have fought against proposed Beltway ramps to create a full interchange between the existing College Park and Kenilworth Avenue interchanges. One serious concern is the further destruction of wetlands to provide for the new ramps. There is also fear that the ramps will lead to increased density on the Smith-Metro core tracts and that area drivers will utilize the ramps as an easy short-cut to Greenbelt Road.

A further concern is the inevitable deflection of interchange traffic on to Cherrywood Lane, a residential street, and an additional adverse effect on nearby county and state highways. Compounding the problem also are defects identified in the construction of the Cherrywood Lane bridge over the Beltway. For five years, two outside bridge lanes have been closed.

To prepare for its upcoming July meeting, last week Metroland circulated a brochure in response to M-NCPPC staff requests and Greenbelt staff and consultants' reports. But as if to insure that Metroland will win out, whether or not it beats the clock on county adoption of the Sector Plan/SMA, County Councilman Thomas Hendershot, a strong and long-time advocate of commercial development, has introduced an amendment to the Sector Plan which would remove its power to impose Development District Standards on a Conceptual Site Plan or preliminary plan of subdivision filed with the Planning Board for Metro Planned Community uses "pursuant to CB-47-2000."

With respect to the conceptual site plan and preliminary plan of

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department.
Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Carjacking

9100 block of Springhill Court, June 16, 11:25 p.m., a resident was approached by a man armed with a silver handgun who demanded his car keys. The resident refused and tried to flee but fell, whereupon the armed man struck him in the back of the head with the gun. Later he took car keys from the resident and put him in the trunk of his vehicle. About two hours later, a Metropolitan (D.C.) officer attempted to stop the vehicle, but it accelerated rapidly and collided with something in the 2400 block of 32nd Street, S.E. At this time the driver fled on foot and was not apprehended. The resident banged on the inside of the trunk lid and officers let him out. He was taken to Greater Southeast Hospital for cuts, a possible dislocated finger, and a knee abrasion. The suspect is a black male, 20 to 25 years old, 6' to 6'2", thin, wearing a small soft cap, light-colored short-sleeved jacket, light pants, and a light-colored bandana with a dark pattern.

Firearms Arrest

100 block of Westway, June 15, 10:04 a.m. After an officer responded to a complaint of illegal parking in a handicapped parking space, a computer check found that the vehicle, a 2001 Jeep, was reported stolen by a North Carolina police department late in May. Officers watched a man enter the vehicle, after which he was arrested. A search revealed a loaded 9 mm. handgun in the man's waistband and suspected marijuana in the Jeep. The man gave a false name and produced forged ID. The 28-year-old man of no fixed address was found to be wanted in Maryland, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and Tennessee. Firearms and drug charges, among others, were placed against him. He was released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a District Court Commissioner.

Burglaries

6200 block of Springhill Drive, June 15, 4:50 p.m., after unknown means of entry, someone took a laptop computer from a residence.

9100 block of Springhill Court, June 21, 9:36 p.m., unknown persons attempted to gain entry by kicking in the front door.

8100 block Ryans Way, June 20, 1:50 p.m., unknown persons climbed up onto the balcony and tried to gain entry via the sliding patio door.

Thefts

Beltway Plaza, June 15, 8:40 p.m., a purse was stolen from a restroom at a movie theater.

dences. All plans also call for a shopping center with four major stores as anchor tenants. Contract purchaser Westfields is expected to develop the shopping center.

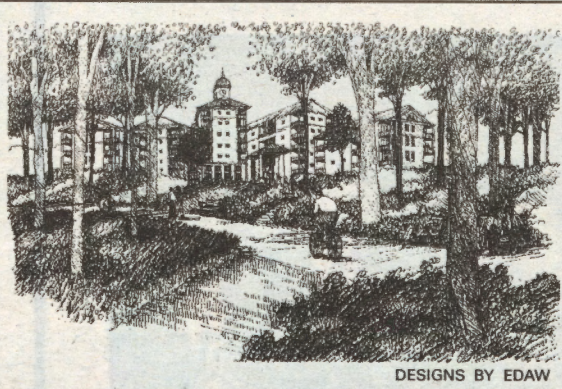

While the county council, in CB-47, legislated that the plan was to be for a "main street" commercial district, all plans appear to resemble designs for major shopping malls rather than main street type developments where access to stores is from a street instead of a mall. Included in the proposals at various locations are two 20-story office buildings. Other office and residential buildings would be up to 15 stories in height. A hotel is included in the concept plans.

Parking will be located primarily in parking structures above or below ground or both. Some surface parking will also be provided. It is not clear how parking would be divided between Greenbelt Station users and Metro users. However, a walkway at the level of the station platform is planned so that Metro users can walk into a plaza where they can access facilities at the new development or take elevators to various parking garage levels. There will also be access at the present station entrance level where space would be provided for "kiss and ride" drop off and for bus parking

South Core

The south core area is divided into two parcels. It is intended that one area would be used for smaller retail stores like those that might be found at Greenway Center. There would also be a mixture of offices and residences. The residences could vary from large apartment buildings to townhouses and from two to eight stories in height. Senior housing is also envisioned.

The north-south road, referred to in the plans as the spine road, would be a divided roadway with a 16-foot landscaped median. A variety of pedestrian ways are also proposed, ranging from sidewalks to multi-purpose trails. The plan proposes a combination of surface and structured parking.

Students at ERHS Awarded Honors

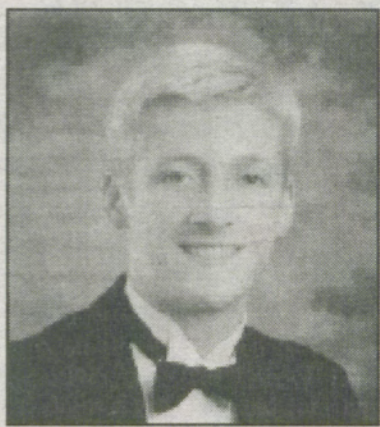

by Mary Moien

Matt Gregory, a lifelong Greenbelt resident, was the valedictorian of Eleanor Roosevelt High School's (ERHS) senior class and received the Goldberg Award and the Chevy Chase Award, both presented to the valedictorian. He was one of many Greenbelters recognized this year as outstanding students. Gregory also received the Superintendent's Award, the highest award presented to a student. One boy and girl in the senior class receive this award for outstanding scholarship, as well as leadership, participation and service to the school and community. Gregory also was recognized for being a National Merit Scholar and having a cumulative 4.0 grade point average for his entire high school career.

John Pak received the Principal's Award, the second highest award presented to a graduating senior. In addition, Pak was recognized for High School High Tech, which is a collaborative effort between ERHS and the Cerebral Palsy Foundation, and received the Tim Hay Memorial Award given in honor of a former math teacher.

ACE Award

Julius Austin and Tarjani Shah each received the ACE Award, which is presented by the

Matt Gregory,
ERHS valedictorian

Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) to two outstanding students. A small scholarship accompanied this award.

4.0 GPA

Mo Cheng, Guinevere Granite, Matt Gregory, Tarjani Shah, and Elisabeth Stratton were recognized for earning a cumulative 4.0 grade point average during all four years at ERHS.

Academy Award

The curriculum at ERHS is now divided into six academies. The first, called the foundation academy, is the Science and Technology segment of the school. The five additional academies range from arts and communications to health and human services. Greenbelt students who received awards for leadership roles in these academies and their advisory boards included

Marquita Douglas, Dang Huynh, Soraj Mathew, Shannon McCraney, and Dina Toulan.

Other Awards

Erin Yokel received the National Hispanic Achievement Award. Jeremiah Woodfork received the Freedom Award. Nia Billings was named the Mediator of the Year for peer mediation. Casey Connor won the Sally Mae Award, a scholarship given to a person who is both a good athlete and a good scholar.

Peter Alexander, Chelsey Lagerwerff, and Azize Sahin received awards from the Family and Consumer Sciences Department. Connie Bailey won an award in Physical Education. Edheni Hamid won the Technology Award. Aron Henry-Lee won the Comcast Student Achievement Award for service and academic excellence.

Michelle Santos won the Goldberg Most Improved Senior Award. Sidikie Sorie was the Judy Frank Scholarship Award winner (named after a former guidance counselor). Elisabeth Stratton won the Kiwanis Service Award for service to the community. Shih Chieh Tao was recognized for scoring highly in the American Mathematics Competition. June Tavel won an art award presented by the Rhode Island School of Design.

A Review

Four Plays: Written, Acted and Enjoyed by Children

by Barbara Likowski

What can we say about "Danger Kids at Work" which played in the Greenbelt Arts Center as part of Greenbelt Day weekend. It is impossible to find the words that would give others the same feeling of awe that those of us who were present felt that children 9 to 12 years old could accomplish so much.

The four one-act plays were written by the members of Greenbelt Elementary School's Drama Club. Not only did they write the plays, the children created their own sets, helped with lights and sound, and acted in them. Four of them, Samantha Corsett, Sarah Stewart, Michael White and Sana Bukhari each directed a play.

Of course there were forgotten lines, missed cues, immature plots, scrambling along to change sets, but consider by whom and for whom the plays were written. The plots were written by children for children. And the children in the audience responded by happily joining in the fun. Isn't that what playwriting is about - writing for the audience!

The first play, "The Witch and the Four Pigs" showed real creativity. Taking the three pigs story, adding a fourth pig and a witch instead of a wolf, they came up with a happier ending and a quite different moral to their story. The pigs and witch compromised and became friends. They gave the witch a home if she would agree to cook for them - but not pig! They decided friendship was more important.

The scenery consisted of four houses painted by the club members, the last one of concrete. Lots of hard work went into that.

"Popularity Isn't a Game" was a little harder to understand. It obviously dealt with a subject important to the children - of not leaving anyone out, of not having a clique.

"The Cookie Run" was a giveaway title. It was about mice wanting to get to the cookie jar but being thwarted by the cat. There were a lot of hissing threats and then woofs as the dog came to the rescue.

Children's interest in the supernatural and bloodthirsty plots came across in "The Puddle of Blood." The kids in the audience loved it. They didn't seem to see anything unusual in the victim yelling "Ouch" as her head was cut off.

When the Greenbelt Arts Center received a grant from County Councilwoman Audrey Scott, they formed the Drama Club at Greenbelt Elementary School. Adult advisors were Mary Lou Fisher, Monica Pittman, Robert Van Tassel, Fann Kash, Virginia Zanner and Anne Sanders. Children met after school. The children have learned a lot. That shows. We hope to see them again as they grow and hope they will eventually join the ranks of Greenbelt thespians.

Clubmembers are: Janee Acevero, Sana Bukhari, George Burton, Djenuabou Barry, Samantha Corsett, Brandon Grant, Cassandra Grant, Clarissa Garrison, Ashley Johnson, Amanda King, Ashleigh Lewis, Houston Manley, Mark Manley, Ke Juan Mayo, Rebecca Myers, Markeisha Nixs, Chicka Opara, Sarah Stewart, Cory Turner, Michaya Walker, Michael Walker, Michael White, and Cassandra Winfrey.

St. Hugh's Softball Team is Undefeated

by Frances Fendlay

Congratulations to the St. Hugh's rookie girls softball team on their undefeated season. The girls finished out their perfect year with a 22-4 victory over St. Mary's.

Game balls went to Amanda Dorsey for her positive attitude and Erin Cocchiario for her outstanding play and team leadership all season. Megan Shaffer led the team in hits. Newcomers Caroline Soter and Nydia Bryan-Green fit nicely into the line up with terrific plays behind the plate. Ashleigh Carter, also new to the team, came on as a strong hitter and excellent base runner.

The team's biggest challenge came in a tight game against St. Joe's. With the girls down 5-2, Audrey Berard hit a solo home run in the bottom of the sixth. This began a four-run rally capped by Devin Fendlay knocking in Lindsey West, who scored the winning run.

Other season highlights included an unassisted double-play by Elizabeth Hartzell; a four-hit game for most-improved player Maureen Sciannella; and Anne Lemieux's three triples in one game. (Anne also played the last game of the season with a broken finger and still managed to get three hits.) Congratulations girls!

Council/Congress Act on Jaeger Tract

by Sandy Smith

At the regular Greenbelt City Council meeting on June 11, council unanimously approved a Friends of Greenbelt Park Agreement with the National Park Service to try to acquire the Jaeger tract for Greenbelt Park. Currently the parcel, located off Kenilworth Avenue, is targeted for residential development.

This action followed a presentation by Glenn Eugster of the National Park Service, who provided an update on a proposal to create a friends agreement to explore alternatives for the public purchase and use of the Jaeger tract, which lies adjacent to the park. The agreement will create a partnership between local communities such as Greenbelt, College Park, and Berwyn Heights; the Westchester Park Civic Association; other groups interested in the property and the National Park Trust.

Eugster, who is the Park Service's assistant regional director and head of the partnership office, said he was optimistic about the success of efforts to preserve the tract for the Park. "A lot of people care about Greenbelt Park," he said.

Council authorized City Manager Michael McLaughlin to sign the agreement and continue to work with the Park Service. A memo from McLaughlin to the other communities urges them to take up the issue as soon as possible, since the Park Service has an agreement with the property owners to try to put together a deal by late August.

Eugster informed council there was a good chance that a provision in an appropriations bill now before the House Appropriations Committee would provide $1 million for this effort. The News Review has since learned that the Interior Department's appropriations bill providing $1 million for the acquisition of the Jaeger tract was approved by the Appropriations Committee on June 13. This action had been proposed and championed by Congressman Steny Hoyer. The $1 million from the Federal government is contingent upon a matching amount being raised from non-federal sources (state, county, city or private donations).

War on Ticks Waged

Ticks that transmit Lyme disease have been dropping like flies in parts of Maryland where deer snack on corn in pesticide-treated feeders developed by Agricultural Research Service scientists in Texas. To reach the corn, deer brush their heads and necks against paint rollers filled with amitraz -- an acaricide deadly to ticks but relatively harmless to beneficial insects and wildlife.

Maryland is one of five northeastern states involved in a project to test these feeders. ARS entomologist John F. Carroll at the Henry A. Wallace Beltsville Agricultural Research Center and the other project researchers aim to reduce blacklegged tick nymphs at each of the 1,280-acre treatment sites by 90 percent after five years. It is the tick's tiny, nymph stage that transmits the Lyme disease bacterium to most people.

In the spring of 1998, Carroll and colleagues set out feeders at the Beltsville center and at each of two other sites located near Baltimore where deer and tick populations are high. The researchers keep the feeders stocked with corn and amitraz in spring and fall, when adult blacklegged ticks look for a blood meal. Nearly all female ticks feed on deer.

ARS is the U.S. Department of Agriculture's chief scientific research agency. For more information call 301-504-1617.
